The College of Performance Management (CPM) is bringing together some of the world's leading project management experts to share their expertise and wisdom for series of webinars starting in December 2021 and continuing throughout 2022. This virtual Champions Series consists of five sessions, providing more than 30 hours of programming that can be used for meeting Continuous Learning Point (CLP), Continuous Professional Educational (CPE) credits, or other requirements.

Each webinar focuses on a specific project management topic and features a panel discussion and community of practice sessions -- all designed to provide you with how-tos, practical advice, lessons learned, and more to further enhance your skills. The cost for the first session is only $20, free for members; subsequent sessions are $40. Special discount pricing for members and groups.

Session 1: December 9, 2021, 1:00PM - 4:30PM (ET)

Topic: System Validation, IBRs, and Surveillance Reviews

Led by Gary Humphreys, President/CEO, Humphreys & Associates Sponsor:

Gary will be joined by:

- Mel Frank, Chief, Project Systems Division at U.S. Department of Energy, who will present a fresh, new approach to assessing the degree of sophistication of contractor EVM Systems to ensure the usefulness of the maturing Earned Value Management Review Process.
- Tony Spillman from Washington River Protection Solutions WRPS, a DOE Contractor, who will present "Preparing for and Responding to a Government EVMS Surveillance." WRPS was the first contractor to be reviewed under the newly developed structure of the ASU Study. The review a complete assessment of the Environmental factors which drive compliance. Tony will discuss lessons learned from where his company got it right, and wrong, and their path forward to ensuring compliance through a partnership with the Department of Energy.
- NASA EVM Program Executive Jon Fleming who will present NASA's approach to the Integrated Baseline Reviews (IBRs) and the importance of this risk-based review to ensure a mutual understanding of the Performance Measurement Baseline (PMB) and inherent risks between customers and suppliers.
- Gary will lead a panel discussion, featuring the three presenters and Donna Holden, Director of the EVMS Center for DoD.

More sessions in 2022 will cover: Analysis & Reporting, Integrated Project/Program/Portfolio Management (IPM), Contracting & Project Start-up, Performance Measurement, Scheduling, Agile Integration, and Cybersecurity Maturity Model Certification (CMMC). All sessions will be recorded for access and replay by paid participants.

CHAMPIONS SERIES & PEP TRAINING 2021-2022

Gain the Skills You Need: Register for CPM PEP Series

Whether you are taking on a new role, want to be more efficient in your current position, or are preparing to take on additional program management responsibilities, CPM's Professional Education Program (PEP) will give you a deeper understanding of the key concepts and processes of Integrated Program Management (IPM) and how to apply them.

Taught by experienced PM professionals, CPM's virtual PEP workshops are spread over six months to enable you to complete the training from the convenience of your computer, without a full-time commitment. You can earn 60+ hours of Continuous Learning Point (CLP) or Continuous Professional Educational (CPE) credits. CPM will provide you with proof of attendance with event details for self-reporting.

Scheduled tracks for 2022:

- February: 500 Track - Performance Measurement & Analysis (Facilitator Mark Troisi)
- March: 100 Track - Principles of Performance Management (Facilitator Elizabeth Schloer)
- April: 400 Track - Integrated Baseline Planning & Maintenance (Facilitator Chris Humphrey)
- May: 200 Track - Structuring Programs for Performance Management

Please note: The first PEP course on Scheduling was completed on November 4, 2021. No worries, we recorded it so you can still "attend" and pick up with the other 4 sessions.
